2023 Assembly Bill 640

Assembly Amendment 1

2023 ASSEMBLY BILL 640

2023 Assembly Bill 640 creates a provisional teaching license for individuals who worked as classroom paraprofessionals for at least three days per week for at least one school year. To receive the license, an individual must receive recommendations from the principal of the school where the individual worked, the director of teaching and learning, and the school district administrator. The bill requires that an experienced teacher, meaning one who has taught for at least three school years, must mentor the individual during the first school year the individual is employed as a teacher.

The provisional license allows an individual to teach within the school district that recommended the individual for licensure. The Department of Public Instruction (DPI) must issue a lifetime license to an individual who obtains a provision license under the bill and successfully completes six semesters of teaching.

ASSEMBLY AMENDMENT 1

Assembly Amendment 1 imposes additional qualifications on paraprofessionals seeking the teaching license, creates additional requirements related to teacher mentoring, and changes the type of DPI license an individual may obtain under the bill.

The amendment requires that an individual must have worked as a paraprofessional for at least three consecutive school years, rather than one. To be eligible for the teaching license, an individual must also have either: (1) earned at least 60 credits from an institution of higher education or technical college; or (2) have earned an associate degree. The individual must also intend to obtain a bachelor's degree and a Tier II DPI teaching license based on completing an educator preparation program.

Additionally, the amendment requires that the experienced teacher who provides mentoring to the individual must have previously mentored a first year or newly employed teacher. The school district must also provide paid release time to the mentoring teacher to observe the individual and provide feedback.

Next, if the individual will teach any grade from kindergarten to third, the school district must provide the individual with early literacy professional development.¹

Finally, the amendment changes the type of teaching license from a provisional license to a Tier I license. Under DPI administrative rules, a Tier I license is for a limited period and does not lead to a lifetime teaching license. The amendment provides that a license issued under the bill may be renewed once, if the school district administrator requests renewal and provides evidence the individual made substantial progress towards obtaining a bachelor's degree.

¹ The amendment specifies that the professional development be the type required of other K-3 teachers, principals, and reading specialists described in 2023 Wisconsin Act 20.
