WM-01-05

Analysis Prepared by the Department of Natural Resources

Statutory Authority and Explanation: Statutes that authorize the promulgation of this rule order include § 23.09(2)(b), 29.014, 29.089(3), 29.091, 29.193(2) and 29.889(2), Stats. These sections grant rule making authority to the department to establish seasons, regulations and bag limits for hunting that ensure the citizens of the state continued opportunities for quality hunting. Additionally, these statutes provide authority for the department to establish refuge areas, manage state owned properties and provide options for landowners dealing with nuisance wildlife. All rules promulgated under this authority are subject to review under ch. 227, Stats.

Statutes Interpreted and Explanation: In promulgating this rule § 1.026(1)(b), 23.09(2)(b), 29.014, 29.089(3), 29.091, 29.193(2) and 29.889(2), Stats., have been interpreted as providing the department with the authority to allow landowners to protect their personal property from gray wolves, as well as implement various hunting and trapping regulation changes.

Related Statute or Rule: There are no rules or statutes currently under promulgation that relate to the provisions that are proposed in the administrative rule order.

Plain Language Rule Analysis: The Bureau of Wildlife Management recommends promulgating administrative rules that modify, repeal and create sections of chapters NR 10, 12, 15 and 45 relating to hunting, trapping, agricultural damage and use of public lands. These rule changes are proposed for inclusion on the 2005 Spring Hearing questionnaire. These proposals include:

- Allowing landowners on private land to shoot and kill any gray wolf in the act of attacking domestic animals provided that they report the shooting to the department within 24 hours and turn the carcass in to the Department.
- Prohibiting the tagging, collaring or marking and release of wild animals without the Department's authorization or as authorized under a Federally issued migratory bird banding permit.
- Eliminating the bear hunting "no dog zone" in bear management zone A.
- Modifying the bear hunting license application deadline and updating application submission information.
- Prohibiting the use of electronic turkey decoys for turkey hunting.
- Establishing a deer hunting season at Kohler-Andrae State Park and correct a drafting error relating to the hunting season at Yellowstone State Park.
- Allowing "Long Term" Class B disabled permit holders, that have a permit which has been issued for hunting from a vehicle and is valid for more than one year, to participate in disabled hunts.
- Allowing the hunting of other game species on lands open to disabled hunts.
- Eliminating the requirement for bear hunters to declare their willingness to participate in agricultural damage and nuisance situations and modification of the application deadline.
- Establishing a "no entry wildlife refuge" at the Turtle Valley Wildlife Area.
- Requiring the owner to identify tree stands used on state owned lands and lands under the management of the department.

The objective of these rule changes is to offer deer, bear and disabled hunters more hunting opportunities and to simplify application procedures and regulatory requirements. In addition, these rules include provisions to effectively manage wildlife populations and to assure that hunters are offered a quality hunting experience.

Federal Regulatory Analysis: Provided state rules and statutes do not relieve individuals from the restrictions, requirements and conditions of Federal statutes and regulations, regulation of hunting and trapping of native species has been delegated to state fish and wildlife agencies. None of the proposed rules exceed the authorities granted the states in 50 CFR 10.

State Regulatory Analysis: These rule changes do not represent policy or significant rule changes that may differ from surrounding states. All surrounding states have regulations and rules in place for the management and recreational use of wild big game, upland, migratory and furbearer species that are established based on needs which often are unique to that state's resources or public desires. Additionally, waterfowl refuges exist in each of the surrounding states.

Portable tree stands are regulated in a variety of ways. In Michigan, if you hunt on public land, your tree stand must be portable and your name and address must be affixed in legible English that can be easily read from the ground. In Illinois, tree stands and blinds on certain public lands open to hunting must be portable and must be tagged with the hunter's name, address, and phone number. In Minnesota and Iowa, no such regulations are in place.

Regarding electronic turkey decoys, Illinois, Minnesota and Michigan prohibit the use of electronic turkey decoys. And finally, regarding the use of hounds and bear hunting, Illinois and Iowa do not have bear seasons. Minnesota has a bear population, which is managed primarily through hunting. However, the use of hounds for bear hunting in Minnesota is prohibited. Michigan also allows bear hunting with hounds, however some areas are periodically closed to hunting bear with hounds.

Summary of Factual Data and Analytical Methodologies: A majority of the rule changes included in this order do not deviate from current Department policy on the management of wildlife, hunting and trapping. The deer season proposed for Kohler - Andrae State Park is consistent with the seasons established at other parks where hunting is feasible and practical. Deer hunting has and continues to be an effective tool for managing deer populations in our state parks. It also allows for increased use and recreational opportunities for hunters in these parks. Another issue related to state properties is the use of tree stands. It is currently legal to use portable tree stands on state property provided they are removed at the end of hunting hours daily. To assure that the requirement to remove these daily is complied with, the Department is proposing that these devices are marked in a similar way as waterfowl blinds or ice fishing shelters are currently required to be marked. The No-entry wildlife refuge proposed for Turtle Valley will allow for a resting area for waterfowl during the duck hunting season as do other refuges established around the state.

Bear hunting with trailing dogs continues to be an effective method in managing bear populations in the state. In addition, it is a recreational opportunity and hunting method that continues to flourish in this state. Last year the Department removed a "no-dog" hunting area in portions of Lincoln, Langlade and Oneida counties. This year at the request of bear hunters by way of last year's Spring Hearings, we again propose the elimination of the "no-dog" hunting zone which existed in zone B in the western portions of Lincoln county and eastern portions of Taylor and Price counties.

The Department continues to strive to offer those hunters that are faced with the challenges of a disability opportunities to participate in hunting. This rule package contains two proposals that deviate from past department policies. First, the department has not allowed those with temporary disabilities (Class B) to participate in special hunts that those with permanent disabilities (Class A) and sight disabilities (Class C) can participate in. The department is proposing to lift this restriction to allow more individuals, specifically those that have a longer-term but not a permanent disability, the opportunity to participate in the special deer and turkey hunts for those with a disability. Secondly, it has been a policy that on private lands where disabled hunts are scheduled no other hunting is allowed. This rule change would make it an option for those landowners who host a disabled hunt, to small game or deer hunt on their property.

Finally, Gray wolves have increased dramatically in the last 10 years in the state. The Natural Resources Board approved the Wisconsin Gray Wolf Management Plan in 1999. That plan contains a provision that once gray wolves are removed from both the state and Federal Endangered/Threatened Species lists, the WIDNR will promulgate rules that would grant people the ability to protect their domestic animals from gray wolf attacks on their own property. The Department moved wolves from the Threatened Species list to the Protected Wild Animal list on August 1, 2004. The U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service is in the process of removing wolves from their threatened Species list.

Anticipated Private Sector Costs: These rules, and the legislation that grants the department rule making authority, do not have a significant fiscal effect on the private sector. Additionally, no significant costs are associated with compliance with these rules.

Effects on Small Businesses: These rules are applicable to individual sportspersons and impose no compliance or reporting requirements for small businesses, nor are any design or operational standards contained in the rule.
