Plain language analysis:

This rule implements 2017 Act 278. The rule sets out uniform procedures and fees for individuals to receive a predetermination of whether a conviction record will prohibit receiving a credential.

An individual may file an application, pay a fee and submit documentation relating to the conviction record, including police report, criminal complaint, judgment of conviction, compliance with sentencing terms, personal statement and evidence of rehabilitation. The predetermination fee paid is credited towards the credential application fee if the individual applies for the credential within one year of the predetermination decision.

When deciding on a predetermination, the agency will consider the following:

- The severity and nature of the offense.
- The circumstances relative to the offense.
- The age of the individual at the time of the offense.
- The amount of time since the offense occurred.
- Whether the conviction is related to the activities of the profession.
- The individual's actions since the conviction and evidence of rehabilitation.

The individual will be sent notification of the decision no later than 30 days after the agency received the predetermination application. The decision is binding upon the agency if the individual applies for the credential unless there is information which is relevant but was not available at the time of the decision.
