For future wisdom, for strong health, for true economy, for actual re-creation, the best thing for Wisconsin trails is to have as many miles as possible with surfaces that are genuinely bike-able, not "Well, I did it, but, I sure ain't gonna ride THAT again."

ATV's chew up surfaces, make them unusable for worthwhile biking. My personal position is I would share (not the position of most club members) surfaces with ATV's and elephants if those surfaces are not too rough/too loose, not an embarrassment for a rich country in 2006. What's good for the bike is better for the people.

Sincerely,

Bill Pearson
