

ORDER OF THE STATE OF WISCONSIN NATURAL RESOURCES BOARD
CREATING RULES

The State of Wisconsin Natural Resources Board proposes an order to create NR 47.92 relating to master logging certification scholarships.

FR-42-05

Analysis Prepared by Department of Natural Resources

Statutes interpreted: ss. 26.39(7), Stats.

Statutory authority: ss. 26.39(7), Stats. 2005 Wisconsin Act 25 created ss. 26.39(7) that specifically directs the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to promulgate rules that establish criteria for logging certification scholarships. The program is to be funded through a continuing appropriation, to be provided annually.

Analysis of proposed rules: Rules will address the purpose, applicability, definitions, application and grant procedures, general provisions, accountability and audit procedure, and termination for the logging certification scholarship program. Scholarships will be provided to applicants interested in attaining Wisconsin Master Logger Certification (MLC[®]) as currently administered through the Wisconsin Professional Loggers Association (WPLA). The funding will be applied as a credit towards an individual's application fee. Eligible costs within the application fee will include costs incurred during the audit process, training related to the audit process, information and outreach to prospective applicants and owners of Wisconsin woodlands, and record-keeping and administrative costs directly related to Wisconsin MLC[®].

Scholarship funds will be distributed quarterly to WPLA on behalf of the individuals that have applied for Wisconsin MLC[®] during that quarter. A Master Logger Advisory Board, independent of WPLA, is responsible for oversight and monitoring of the Wisconsin MLC[®] program. The Advisory Board ensures that WPLA's administration of the program adheres to the national MLC[®] standards. Scholarship funds not spent on eligible costs will be returned to DNR. Scholarship funds will be retained by WPLA in a segregated account that will be audited periodically by DNR Division of Forestry.

Comparison with federal regulations: There are no known federal regulations that apply to the MLC[®] program.

Comparison with adjacent states: None of the adjacent states have implemented a similar program at this time. Michigan is in the early stages of developing a MLC[®] program, however, has not drafted any rules as yet. Minnesota is also starting a similar program however they are not intending to pattern it after the MLC[®] standards. Neither Iowa nor Illinois have any related programs.

Summary of the methodologies used in support of the proposed rule: 2005 Act 25 was specific in identifying the MLC[®] program as currently administered through WPLA. The rule was drafted to accommodate the existing format and minimize DNR administrative costs, while still providing appropriate oversight of the logging certification scholarship program. DNR worked with WPLA in rule development.

Effect on small business: This rule does affect small business. The scholarship program would make Wisconsin MLC more affordable for logging contractors. The current cost of attaining MLC is approximately $2500. At present, the cost of the program is prohibiting some contractors from applying. Master Logger status is advantageous to contractors in that it does provide them with additional opportunities to market green-certified forest products. It also helps to ensure that they will be able to continue marketing forest products to some mills that may require green-certified raw materials in the future. Wisconsin MLC[®] also provides third party verification of a logger's business practices. This could be helpful in marketing their services. It is not possible to affix a monetary value on the marketing impacts.
