Analysis of Rule

1. Statutes interpreted.

Statutes Interpreted: s. 101.147, Stats., as affected by 2009 Wisconsin Act 28.

2. Statutory authority.

Statutory Authority: ss. 101.02 (1) and 101.147, Stats., as affected by 2009 Wisconsin Act 28.

3. Related statute or rule.

None.

4. Explanation of agency authority.

Under chapters 101 and 145 of the Wisconsin Statutes, the Department of Commerce protects public health, safety, and welfare by promulgating comprehensive requirements for design, construction, use and maintenance of public buildings and places of employment, public swimming pools and water attractions and adopts rules that establish uniform, statewide standards for the construction of one- and 2-family dwellings.

These statutes also provide the Department with oversight of various mechanical systems and devices to protect public safety and health. The Department administers and enforces codes that address amusement rides, ski lifts and tows, boilers and pressure vessels, gas systems and mechanical refrigeration systems to accomplish its statutory objectives.

The construction trades and equipment installers share a responsibility with owners and designers to ensure that the buildings and equipment relative to the respective trade's work, do not pose risk to public safety and health.

5. Summary of proposed rules.

Effective October 2, 2009, the various construction trades involved in building or modifying these types of structures are required to register as a building contractor. The department administers a registration program for businesses engaged in building construction as contractors or subcontractors under ch. Comm 5. The proposed rules expand the building contractor registration which is a credential for a contracting business and is not required for each partner or employee involved with physically constructing or modifying the structures.

In light of Wisconsin Act 28, the definition of “construction business” has been revised to apply to trades that are regulated by departmental codes. The proposed rules require the registration of trades and businesses that construct, install or alter mechanical equipment and devices such as boilers, gas systems, piping and mechanical refrigeration systems serving a building or structure. In addition, the proposed rules expand the registration requirement to those trades or businesses involved in the construction, installation or alteration of permanent devices or structures regulated under the amusement rides code and the sanitation code.

The proposed rules create administrative procedures and a forfeiture process for those persons or entities doing construction- or installation-related work without a registration number. The forfeitures would apply to the building contractor registration and to the other business contractor credentials currently recognized in lieu of the building contractor registration.

In addition, the proposed rules consolidate two types of weld tester certifications into one category.

6. Summary of, and comparison with, existing or proposed federal regulations.

An Internet-based search of the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) and the Federal Register did not find any federal regulations relating to contractor registration.

7. Comparison with rules in adjacent states.

An Internet-based search of contractor registration in the states of Illinois, Iowa, Michigan and Minnesota found the following:

- Illinois – Except for roofers, the state of Illinois does not have any regulations for the licensure of building contractors.
- Iowa – All individual contractors and businesses performing construction work in the state of Iowa are required to be registered. The 2-year registration fee is $25. The prerequisites for registration include the demonstration of compliance with worker’s compensation insurance requirements and with unemployment tax requirements.

If a contractor does not register or falsifies registration information, then Iowa assesses a penalty of not more than $500 for a first violation and not more than $5,000 for a second or subsequent violation.

- Michigan –Persons and businesses that contract with property owners to build new homes or remodel homes are required to have licenses in the state of Michigan. The license types are 1) residential builder and 2) residential maintenance and alteration contractor, which is restricted to perform only specific trades and services. The fee is $225 for a 3-year license, and applicants must complete 60 hours of approved education and pass an examination. Michigan does not have a licensing law regulating builders of commercial buildings.

In Michigan, a person who is not licensed as a residential builder or a residential maintenance and alteration contractor can be found guilty and fined as follows:

- In the case of a first offense, a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not less than $5,000 or more than $25,000, or imprisonment for not more than 1 year, or both.
- In the case of a second or subsequent offense, a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not less than $5,000 or more than $25,000, or imprisonment for not more than 2 years, or both.
- In the case of an offense that causes death or serious injury, a felony punishable by a fine of not less than $5,000 or more than $25,000, or imprisonment for not more than 4 years, or both.
- Minnesota – The state of Minnesota requires certifications for a person or business that contracts with property owners to construct or improve dwellings for habitation by one- to four-families and where the person or business is involved with two or more special building skills. The Residential Contractor license and Remodeler license are annual licenses. The fees, which are based upon gross receipts, are $260 to $360. The application for the license requires a qualifying person to take the required examination and fulfill the continuing education requirements for the business.

Effective January 1, 2009, the Minnesota Independent Contractor Certification Law requires building contractors to certify that they are independent contractors versus employees using a “9 Items” test related to Worker’s Compensation. The fee for a 2-year certification is $250.

Minnesota assesses a penalty of up to $5,000 for each violation if a person performs work without first obtaining a certificate or falsifies or alters a certificate. The penalty also applies to anyone who uses coercion, misrepresentation or fraudulent means to require another individual to adopt independent contractor status.

8. Summary of factual data and analytical methodologies.

The proposed rules were developed by reviewing the provisions under 2009 Wisconsin Act 28 in conjunction with the current rules relating to contractor registration under s. Comm 5.30. For consistency, the proposed forfeitures are modeled after other penalties currently used by the department to enforce compliance with other construction-related licenses, certifications and registrations.

9. Effect on small business including analysis and supporting documents used to determine effect on small business or in preparation of economic impact report.

The proposed rules implement the mandates imposed by 2009 Wisconsin Act 28. The effect on small businesses is minor and ensures that the construction trades comply with Wisconsin worker’s compensation insurance and unemployment tax requirements. Identifying contractor businesses will help prevent unfair competition which is a common problem for contractors.

An economic impact report has not been required pursuant to s. 227.137, Stats.
